he said, and she heard someone talking in the background.

Chapter 184 Anne recognized the voice and knew that it was Lucas' assistant. Knowing that he must be busy at the moment, Anne did not continue the conversation and ended the call. For a long while, she could not seem to regain her composure because she felt like there was more to the situation. The attention on the incident had only increased in the past two days almost as though the school had hidden the truth about the death of the female student back then.

At the moment, the triplets were the only ones who were in Lucas' apartment and they had not seen him in the past two days.

Just then, they heard the door knob turning and Lucas stepped into the apartment. Anne stood up abruptly. "Daddy!" The three children chirped and Anne blushed at the way they addressed him.

Lucas casually walked over to pat them on the head, before turning his attention to Anne. "You're here."

Though there was still a smile on his face, Anne could tell how troubled he was and looked away. "I just got here."

"I was busy for the past two days so I didn't have time to come home," he said.

"It's okay. There's a helper here and the kids are good at adapting to new environments. Don't worry about it." The only concern on Anne's mind was that the situation at the school remained unresolved.

"Yeah. Don't worry about us, Daddy!" Charlie said. "Good boy." Lucas chuckled and asked, "Have you all eaten?" "We did, but Mama hasn't!" Chloe said.

"Eat with me?" Lucas said, and Anne obliged.

The triplets stayed in the living room to play while she headed to the dining room with Lucas.

"Have you managed to settle the issue?" She asked. "Not yet." He frowned. "Everything is still under investigation..." "Are you in trouble?" If there were not any complications, the situation would have been resolved by now. – The girl who committed suicide did so because her parents had neglected her. The school had compensated the family members and that was the end of it, what's odd is that the parents came forth recently, blaming the school for the suicide and claiming that the girl had been acting strange even before she committed suicide."

She lowered her gaze absently.

Seeing that she remained quiet, he smiled. "It's a little complicated, but we will handle it." She snapped out of her dazed state. "Should I take the kids back for now? They might distract you." "They will be taken care of even when I'm not home, but that's not the case for you." He shot her a reassuring look. "Don't worry." After leaving Lucas' luxurious apartment, she took the subway home and along the way, she took out her phone to check Anthony's location to find him in the Royal Mansion, If he was not at Archduke Group, could he be with Bianca at the moment? If they were together, Anne would only provoke Anthony further by going to look for him. She made a call to Anthony after getting off the subway and was anxious while she wait; she dreaded the moment when the call was answered, but felt nervous when it wasn't at the same time.

That was precisely how intimidating Anthony was. In the end, he did not answer his phone and Anne stood by the road, contemplating her next move while biting on her lip. Eventually, she sent him a message. (I will go to the Royal Mansion to see you.)
