Chapter 1071 Someone Was Monitoring The Video Call

In the Thousand Crane Island Resort in Channing

The Saber clan booked the entire Thousand Crane Island!

Now, other than the resort's employees, the entire island was filled with the clan's followers.

Marcus Lane had ordered all the followers to gather on the island as he planned to seek revenge against Nathan.

At this moment, Marcus had just ended a video call with Cicero Trumbo when Tyler Webbs knocked on the door hurriedly.

Casting a displeased look at Tyler, Marcus demanded, "Why are you in a rush? Where are your manners?"

Tyler replied frantically, "Mr. Lane, something terrible has happened. Our technician realized that someone was monitoring your video call with Cicero just now."

Chapter 1071 Someone Was Monitoring The Video Call

Marcus widened his eyes in shock!

That is alarming news! The call was with the leader of The Omniscience, Cicero Trumbo and it contained many highly confidential secrets. If the person recorded the call and submitted it to the Secret Service or top officials, it will serve as iron-clad evidence that we are a part of The Omniscience and traitors of the nation!

Marcus had always been careful, and he did not expect his rare slip-up would cause him so much trouble this time.

Panicked, he questioned Tyler, "Have you checked whether the person monitoring the call is from the Secret Service?"

"It is not someone from Secret Service. We have tracked the location of the eavesdropper to an ordinary apartment owned by a female reporter from Channing TV Station. Her name is Sarah Lee."

Marcus felt slightly more assured when he learned that the person monitoring the call was not from the Secret Service.

Narrowing his eyes into slits, he asked, “Then have you investigated the background of this Sarah Lee?”

“Yes. She is rather well-known in Channing for her news reports exposing the underground society and often targets companies with unethical and illegal practices. But I don’t know why she is targeting us. She has made use of her connections to tamper with the Thousand Crane Island Resort’s network, in order to monitor the video call between you and Mr. Trumbo just now. I’m just not sure if she has recorded the call.”

“No matter what, she must die. Bring some men along with you to her apartment. Remember to make it clean.”

“Yes!”

Due to her journalistic instinct, Sarah had only wanted to dig up news involving

Nathan and Saber. But she did not expect to obtain evidence proving that the clan was part of The Omniscience!

The news was too much for her to handle.

Saber is the leader of the eight most prestigious families in the country. I may die anytime if they find out what I have done!

Flustered, she quickly saved a copy of the recording on a USB drive and in the cloud drive. Putting on her jacket, she covered her face with a cap and a face mask before leaving the house hurriedly.

The moment she reached the ground floor lobby, a few cars screeched to a stop in front of her residence. Tyler and several men got out of the car, all looking murderous.

Tyler barked out orders to his subordinates, "The few of you go and block the staircase. And you guys shall guard at the entrance. The rest shall follow me into the lift!"

Chapter 1072 Only Nathan Can Save You

Sarah trembled upon learning of their arrival. With her head low, she left as fast as lightning. This marked the start of her life as a fugitive.

When she reached the TV station, she saw someone pacing at its entrance. The person dashed towards her immediately when he caught sight of her.

Terrified, she turned and ran away instantly!

As she ran, her bag, along with her phone and wallet inside, had fallen out of her grasp. She even ditched her high heels somewhere along the way.

Finally, she managed to shake off her pursuers by turning into a deserted alley.

She had called the police, but none other than the killers turned up.

Her friends, whom she sought help from, refused to help her when they found out she had offended the Saber clan.

Now, she could not return home and had no one to turn to for help. Furthermore, there were a few times when she was almost caught by her pursuers.

It was already 9pm!

She hid among the garbage in the alley, resembling a beggar in her disheveled hair and dirty clothes.

I have been pampered and protected all my life. Yet, I am reduced to this pathetic state now simply because I have accidentally stumbled onto evidence against Saber!

With her head between her knees, she sat on the dirty ground and broke down in tears.

Who can save me now?

At this moment, a police car drove towards her slowly.

At the sight of the police car, she ran out of her hiding spot unhesitatingly and stopped the police car. With tears streaming down her face, she begged, "Please save me! Someone is after my life! Please save me..."

The police car stopped. Zed Walker and two of his subordinates stepped out of the car.

It took a while for Zed to recognize Sarah.

Frowning, he asked, "Ms. Lee, how did you offend the Saber clan? Their men are searching high and low for you."

Sarah sobbed, "Captain Walker, please help me. I found out that they..."

Zed's face clouded over and he cut her off hurriedly, "Don't tell me. I can't help you anyway and may very well be the group's next target if I find out anything that I shouldn't know!"

What? Zed doesn't even dare to know what crime the clan has committed, much less to investigate it!

Sarah's heart sank in hopeless despair...

She pleaded in a trembling voice, "Captain Walker, please help me. My bosses and friends dare not help me, and now even the police refused to step in. Must I wait for the clan to kill me?"

After a moment of hesitation, Zed advised her, "There is only one person in Channing who does not care about the clan. You can seek help from him!"

"Who is that?"

"Nathan Cross!"

Nathan Cross!

Sarah's eyes widened in astonishment. Penny's husband? That man who mooches off his wife, who also happens to be my archenemy? Why does he have the ability to save me?

Sensing the doubt in Sarah's eyes, Zed continued calmly, "I have told you who can save you. Whether you can get him to save you depends on you.”

With that, Zed got into the car and drove off.

Left without a choice, Sarah decided to try her luck.

She called Penny Smith from a phone which she borrowed from a cleaner.

“Penny, I’m in deep trouble. I have offended the Saber clan and their men are now looking everyone for me so they can kill me. My bosses, friends, and even the police dare not help me. Someone tells me that only Nathan can save me. Please, I beg you to save me...”

Having heard the shocking news, Penny quickly consoled Sarah, “Don’t worry. Where are you now? I will head over with Nathan immediately.”

Chapter 1073 So You Are On The Same Team

After Sarah ended the call, she sat on the bench by the road and waited blankly.

In fact, she was clueless over whether Nathan could save her.

Nathan was now just an unemployed idler. Furthermore, he was living off Penny Smith at her house.

Nathan had even offended the Saber clan, as she did. The purpose of the clan's visit to Channing this time was to get rid of him.

He is in trouble himself—how could he possibly save me?

Time passed by quickly and after half an hour, tens of black sedans roared past.

Tyler Webbs hopped off the car alongside dozens of his subordinates, all in black suits.

When he saw the dirty Sarah Lee sitting on the roadside bench, he let out a sigh of relief.

Mr. Lane had given a strict order. If he failed to get rid of the female reporter by dawn, he would not live to see the morning sun.

He instructed his subordinates to surround Sarah Lee and mocked, "Ms. Lee, we spent half a day looking for you. We have deleted the video you saved in the cloud, but you should still have a backup copy. If you're willing to hand it over to us nicely, we can consider letting you off."

Sarah Lee raised her head and eyed Tyler Webbs indifferently. "Although I'm a woman, I'm not stupid. The moment I hand over the backup copy is when I die."

The latter chuckled. "You are very smart! But I have more than a hundred ways to make you suffer and regret that you were born. I guarantee I will make it quick if you take the initiative and hand over the copy now."

Sarah Lee turned pale and stared at him in shock, stammering, "Y-You are a devil!"

But at this moment, the roar of car engines was heard and two dazzling headlights could be seen from not far away. Everyone immediately directed their attention toward those cars.

Soon after, an ultra-luxury sedan appeared in front of everyone.

The car came in at full speed and only braked at the last second, stopping in the middle of the road horizontally.

The car door was pushed open; Nathan Cross and Penny Smith stepped out at the same time.

“Nathan! Penny!”

Sarah’s eyes widened as she saw the couple.

She was not expecting them to come to her rescue. Profound gratitude could be seen in her eyes.

It did not matter whether the couple could save her, as she would always remember their kindness.

Everyone knew that she had offended the Saber clan, hence no one was willing to help her. It was commendable that Nathan and Penny rushed here in time to help her.

Penny gasped as she saw Sarah all dirty, “Sarah, are you alright?”

Nathan smiled. “She’s indeed dirty but she looks fine. We got here in time.”

The couple tried to walk to Sarah but their path was blocked by Tyler and his subordinates.

The men in suits heard the instruction and replied uniformly, “Understood!”

Simultaneously, two men aimed for Nathan and Penny and struck first.

Sarah noticed the move and exclaimed, “Be careful!”

But before she could even finish speaking, Nathan had already raised his leg and kicked the men’s chests in two respective blows.

Their chests were deeply caved in as they spewed blood out of their mouth. They flew backward like a broken kite and crashed onto the ground heavily.

Aiming for Nathan Cross, dozens of men in suits roared and lunged forward like a pack of wolves.

Nathan placidly expressed his disdain. “They’re just a bunch of fearless but useless rubbish!”

Upon finishing his sentence, he sent an opponent flying with a punch!

Throughout this time he had stayed near Penny, protecting her. His moves were as quick as lightning and he struck down his opponents one by one. Soon, everyone was lying on the floor, writhing in pain. No one was his match.

Tyler Webbs was both shocked and furious at the scene before him. He bellowed, “Rascal, let me deal with you!”

Once his words fell, he charged toward Nathan Cross like an off-string arrow.

Nathan lifted his leg.

The kick landed on his chest as he spat blood out of his mouth before crashing onto the floor.

Tyler's heart skipped a beat as droplets of sweat rolled down his forehead. The muscles at the corners of his eyes twitched, and chills ran down his spine.

His reaction was a beast's instinct to danger!

At this moment, he felt like he was a vulnerable puppy targeted by a vicious tiger. He was so frightened that all he could do was lie on the floor, feeling as though Nathan would twist off his neck in the next second and end his life.

He could not help himself but stammered,

Nathan Cross ordered icily, “My leather shoes are stained with your blood. Wipe them clean.”

What?

Tyler Webbs was stunned by what he heard.

He instinctively looked at Nathan’s black leather shoes, and indeed saw some bloodstains on them. The stain came about when he spewed blood after being kicked by Nathan.

“Okay. I’ll wipe it. I’ll wipe it clean...”

Tyler sprawled toward Nathan’s feet and desperately wiped the leather shoes with his sleeves.

While wiping Nathan’s shoes with his head down, he secretly slipped out a dagger that he had hidden in his sleeves.

He grabbed the dagger and aimed at

The Black Dragon of Sleeves!

This was Tyler Webb's signature move, which he would typically use as an element of surprise to gain himself the upper hand. Several masters had lost to Tyler Webbs because of this move.

The black dagger dashed toward Nathan's abdomen like a black, venomous dragon.

Nathan lifted his hand in time and grasped Tyler's wrist that was holding the dagger.

Tyler's pupils dilated in surprise. He was confident that this strike would be a success, but Nathan managed to stop him.

He stared at Nathan Cross in horror!

Nathan replied coldly, "I was going to spare your life so that you can send my message to Marcus Lane, but it seems like it's unnecessary now."

Nathan turned around to see that Penny had already helped an extremely exhausted Sarah to get up.

Nathan asked calmly, "Are you okay? Let's go back first."

Sarah's voice quavered, replying, "No. I can't go to your house in this situation, not in public..."

She shook her head. “No!”

Nathan then smiled, “Since you didn’t kill, set fire, cheat, or lie to anyone, why can’t you appear in public in broad daylight?”

A single sentence had her speechless.

She regained her composure after a while and tried to explain that she had offended the Saber clan...

But Nathan simply smiled. “Let’s go. If we didn’t commit any crime, there’s no reason why we can’t be seen in public. No one would lay their fingers on you—that I can guarantee you!”

Nathan Cross and Penny Smith brought Sarah Lee back home with them.

Nathan and his family sat on the sofa opposite Sarah. He waited till she finished eating the noodles before asking, "Alright, now tell me, how did you provoke the Saber clan? Why are they taking such extreme measures to hunt you down?"

Penny Smith and her brother looked at Sarah nervously.

Sarah was extremely grateful to Nathan and told the story immediately, sparing no details.

Penny, Benson, and Leah were outraged and commented that the Saber clan was too despicable.

Nathan said plainly, "The Saber clan is extremely powerful; they're not someone to mess with. Ordinary people would never stick their noses into affairs related to them. When I was serving in the military, I saved my leader's life so I have some connections in the military. If you have faith in me, hand me the USB flash drive and leave the problem to me."

Sarah agreed without hesitation.

Firstly, she trusted Nathan a lot. Secondly, both her superior at the television station and the chief of police, Zed Walker, dared not get involved. Thus, she had no possible way to pass the flash drive to the relevant authority, even if that was her wish.

All the disciples of the Saber clan around him did not dare to utter a word.

Marcus then suppressed his anger and asked calmly, "Where is she now?"

One of his most capable right-hand men, Johnathan Young, answered, "Mr. Lane, Sarah Lee was taken away by Nathan Cross."

Marcus Lane squinted. "Nathan Cross? Could it be that this female reporter was employed by Nathan to cause us trouble?"

Johnathan replied solemnly, "It is possible!"

Marcus scoffed, "It seems like Nathan is

Philip Lane then asked impatiently, “Dad, Nathan tortured me and Dean miserably. Not only did he force me to dig a grave for the dogs with bare hands, but he also made us kneel at the dogs’ graves the entire night! You have to avenge me!”

Marcus narrowed his eyes. “It’s such a waste to bury dogs in the grave you dug. I’ll bury his corpse with the dogs!”

That was music to Philip’s ears.

Marcus Lane commanded in a deep voice, “Everyone, follow me to Channing prison. We’ll pick up Mr. William and kill Nathan Cross.”

The core Saber clan members around him answered uniformly, “Yes, Sir!”

There is a large fleet of vehicles outside with more than a thousand men gathered! They're all from the Saber clan. It seems like the head of their clan, Marcus Lane, is here in person."

What?

Color drained from George's face as he dashed out.

Dozens of prison guards had already suited up and gathered at the front yard of the prison. They were all holding their weapons, ready to confront the enemy.

Marcus scoffed, "You can try. Do you believe that nothing will happen to me even after I kill all of you? Franklin Wilson, your Commander-In-Chief, will even buy me dinner."

Indeed!

The Saber clan was the head of the eight most revered families. They had connections all over the country, from the police force to underground mobs. Even Franklin Wilson, the major general, had to treat Marcus Lane with respect.

Given the clan's powerful background, nothing would happen to them even if they killed George Landon and the prison guards.

George knew that it was pointless to fight. Resisting would only cause his subordinates' lives.

Hence, he took the lead and dropped his weapon, instructing his subordinates, "Drop your weapons!"

Marcus Lane chuckled, "That's how it should be!"

George Landon replied coldly, "Marcus Lane, don't be too cocky! You will regret it all when Mr. Cross arrives!"

Beneath the old locust tree were two small mounds with a wooden sign: The Tomb of Army Dogs—Big Black & Little Black.

Marcus gazed at his son, “Are those the graves they forced you to dig for the dead dogs?”

As soon as he finished speaking, Marcus and Philip Lane took a deep breath. It was not because they were scared, but they thought that Nathan had taken his boasting too far.

How dare he declare upfront that he would remove our clan from being one of eight most revered families?

He is just asking for trouble by boasting this far!

Marcus Lane and his followers could not help themselves but burst into laughter!

Even Sarah Lee, who was standing beside Nathan, looked puzzled.

She peeked at him in bewilderment.

As far as she knew, Nathan Cross had served in the military, but he had already retired.

Sarah was not sure anymore. She just wished that he were not a fool, or else she was prepared to die alongside him.

The crowd was making fun of Nathan Cross, but he remained calm and walked toward George Landon, planning to help him up.

However, before he could reach the dogs' grave, Marcus Lane said icily, "Johnathan Young, this bunch of people said they will remove the Saber clan's status as one of the eight most revered families. I want you to kill them all on your own and show them what we've got!"

King of the North!

A furious look flashed through Nathan's eyes!

He was the General leading 300,000 soldiers of the North, but even he did not dare declare himself King of the North.

It was outrageous for Johnathan Young to be crowning himself as such.

The outcome of the clash between their fists was the crippling of Johnathan's entire arm, turning him into a one-armed man.

Nathan then raised his leg and delivered a forceful kick at Johnathan's chest.

The cracking sound of Johnathan Young's bones could be heard. His distorted body flew backward and landed in front of Marcus and Phillip Lane. He was dead by then.

Both Marcus and Philip Lane were shocked. They could not believe their eyes!

Thousands of Saber clan disciples stared at the scene in shock. One of the Fantastic Four, the King of the North, was killed by Nathan Cross within seconds.

Oh God!

The King of the North was slaughtered by Nathan Cross that easily. This is terrifying.

Even Sarah Lee stared at Nathan in disbelief. In her opinion, he was just a guy that relied on his wife, but his performance today had her surprised.

Her eyes widened as she gaped. He is so decisive when it comes to killing someone. How many people did he kill on the battlefield to be able to do that?

Just as everyone present was frozen in place, Nathan went forward and helped George Landon up, letting him sit against the old locust tree.

Meanwhile, Colin Dunne and others helped the other injured prison guards to sit up or lie down as they awaited the arrival of the ambulance.

By then, Marcus Lane had snapped back to his senses. He sneered, "Tsk tsk tsk, it turns out you are indeed quite capable. No wonder you're so arrogant.”

“The rest of the Fantastic Four and Eighteen King Kong, listen to my command. Attack all at once and take them down!”

Twenty-one elite fighters immediately dashed toward Nathan and his men like a streak of vicious tigers.

Nathan Cross had intervened earlier because he was angered, but this time around he did not bother to fight with the slaves of the Saber clan.

He instructed calmly, “Colin, get rid of them!”

“Yes, Sir!”

Colin Dunne, the Elite Eight, Thunderstorm, and Waves all joined in the brawl.

Within seconds, they were engaged in a fierce fight. The scent of death lingered in the atmosphere.

The battle was over soon after it started.

Colin Dunne, the Elite Eight, Thunderstorm, and Waves were perfectly fine. While they stood still, their opponents had all collapsed in a pool of their own blood.

Sarah was elated upon seeing the outcome. Other than being impressed, she was surprised.

My goodness! Not only is Nathan skilled, but so are his subordinates!

Marcus Lane was dumbfounded again.

His most powerful disciples were all defeated in a blink of an eye.

He stared at Nathan Cross in disbelief.

Nathan then asked smugly, "Didn't you say that you'd kill all of us? Is that all that you've got?"

The former regained his composure and replied icily, "Ha. I admit that your men are very skilled; even I find them impressive.

But can your combat skills be better than bullets?”

Marcus then signaled his disciples and bellowed, “Where are the snipers?”

Snipers!

As soon as Marcus shouted and made a hand gesture, red laser spots dotted the scene.

The snipers had their laser sights aimed at Nathan and his people.

Color drained from the faces of Sarah, George, and the others.

“Mr. Cross, I forgot to mention, the Saber clan brought dozens of snipers along this time around,” George reported in a trembling voice, “They were the ones who disarmed us.”

Sarah paled. Shit! We’re doomed. These men are playing dirty since they realize they have no way of taking down Nathan in a fistfight.

Marcus looked at Nathan gleefully and sneered, “Not only did I bring along thousands of men, but I also prepared 30 snipers just in case, to take down someone like you. You may be good at martial arts, but you most definitely won't be able to dodge those bullets. Everyone, get on your knees!"

Nathan smirked. "Why should I?"

"Because I have all of you surrounded. I can have everyone killed at any moment since these snipers are under my command," Marcus snorted haughtily.

Nathan grinned. "You mean these snipers?"

With that, he lifted his right hand.

Instantly, all the red laser dots followed Nathan's palm as if his palm possessed mystical powers.

Marcus and the others were dumbstruck, staring at the red laser dots concentrated on Nathan's palm. What in the world is going on?

Marcus's voice cracked as he shouted, "You?"

Nathan smiled mysteriously as he pointed towards Marcus.

Instantly, all those red laser dots moved in the direction Nathan was pointing toward and gathered on Marcus.

The dozens of snipers now had their rifles aimed at Marcus.

What?

Marcus, Philip, the rest of the Saber clan, George, and Sarah were all confused.

They couldn't understand why the Saber snipers turned on their master, Marcus, and had their rifles pointed at him.

Nathan smiled coldly as he revealed, "Your team of snipers has long been taken down by my men. The snipers surrounding us at the moment are all under my command!"

Marcus widened his eyes in disbelief.

A few of Marcus's own subordinates raised their rifles in unison and aimed at Nathan.

However, gunshots had already sounded in the air before they could even release the safety.

Marcus's men were shot in the head at almost the same time; their bodies all dropped lifelessly to the ground.

Marcus turned deathly pale and his face was beaded with cold sweat. In a shaky voice, he asked Nathan, "How many snipers are there in total?"

"Not many, about a hundred, I think," Nathan replied with a smile.

Marcus exclaimed, "That's not possible! Where did you... How did you get so many snipers and rifles?"

Nathan snorted, "This is nothing. I've prepared something even more shocking for you tonight. Colin, tell the lads to show themselves and let these b*stards see what they're capable of. We'll show them what real marksmanship is like!"

“Yes, Sir!” Colin replied solemnly.

With that, he took out a flare gun and fired it into the air.

Bang!

Whoosh!

A noisy flare shot up into the sky.

The next moment, deafening noises erupted from all around the prison.

Marcus and his subordinates gaped as the convoy of armored cars surrounded them.

These armored tanks carried on their backs fleets of fully-armed off-road vehicles as well as troops of armed soldiers.

A loud whirring noise could also be heard in the air.

Dozens of armed helicopters filled the sky as if they were giant nocturnal birds.

Very soon, these helicopters were hovering above the prison and their high-speed machine guns were aiming at Marcus and his men.

As if that were not grand enough of a spectacle, men in black combat suits could also be seen rappelling down from the helicopters.

They quickly gathered around Nathan the moment they landed in order to provide him with close protection.

Marcus and his clan were flabbergasted.

The Saber clan had given Channing's leaders a heads-up before carrying out their plan. How did things change so drastically overnight? Why was the army being mobilized?

Staring at the troops surrounding him nervously, Marcus yelled, “Which military districts are you guys from? Who gave the orders to mobilize the army? Don’t you know I am the Master of the Saber clan, Marcus Lane?”

“I gave the orders!”

The soldiers parted to make a path as Franklin Wilson, who was dressed in a major general’s uniform, arrived at the scene with a large battalion of soldiers.

Marcus was shocked and livid to see Franklin. “Franklin, how could you turn against me when I treat you like a friend? You mobilized the army just to take me down for a stranger?”

Franklin replied coldly, “Don’t pull the friend card on me. You’re just a traitor who betrayed our nation. Moreover, I don’t have friends who involve themselves with The Omniscience.”

Marcus’s expression turned sour.

He pointed at Nathan and Sarah frantically and said, “Major-General Wilson, you must have been misguided by the two of them. Don’t believe whatever they say; I’m innocent.”

Franklin sneered, “So you’re saying Mr. Cross framed you?”

Marcus replied, “Of course he did! We’re sworn enemies. He refused to stand around and do nothing since he knew I was coming for him, so he conspired with this female journalist to frame me.”

“What a load of crap!” Franklin barked. “Do you even know who Mr. Cross is? Given his status, he wouldn’t even need to frame you if he really wanted to take you down. You involved yourself with our nation’s enemies and betrayed our country for your own benefit! How dare you still try to worm your way out of this?”

Marcus was dumbstruck. He stared at Nathan in disbelief and shouted, “W-Who is he?”

Franklin said angrily, “You fool! He used to be my master and my superior. He now holds the title of General of the North. He is the God of War, General Nathan Cross!”

The General!

Boom!

Marcus felt as though he had been struck by lightning upon hearing about Nathan’s identity.

His knees buckled and he fell onto the ground with a loud thud.

He looked at Nathan in despair. Marcus finally came to realize why Nathan had the guts to declare upfront that he would remove the Saber clan from the league of the eight most revered families.

He also began to understand why Nathan and his men were so highly skilled in combat.

No wonder Nathan could easily wipe out the snipers I’ve secretly brought along ahead of time.

It's all because Nathan is the General himself!

Saber is doomed.

Marcus, Philip, and all other Lanes fell into despair.

Franklin came forward. He saluted Nathan and asked, "General, what should we do with them?"

Nathan replied coldly, "Arrest all of them. Transfer the important ones to the Secret Service and let justice be served."

"Yes, Sir!" Franklin replied.

Marcus knew he wouldn't be able to escape his crimes when he heard that he would be transferred to the Secret Service. Meanwhile, it's all over for the Saber clan as well.

He blacked out and fainted upon that bitter realization.
