Just as the Holland family gaped at Nathan in shock, a Maybach and two Mercedes-Benz suddenly showed up outside.

The head of the Lillard family, Klay, came to visit them with his youngest son, Keller and a few of his subordinates.

As they approached them, they saw the recyclables scattered all around, so Klay covered his nose with a handkerchief in disgust. He then asked nonchalantly, "Is anyone home?"

Maurice flew into a rage when he saw them as he shouted, "Klay Lillard, I was about to ask the Lillard family to give us an explanation, and you came at just the right time!"

The Lillards stepped into the house and saw the Holland family, Nathan, Colin, and the Elite Eight.

Klay was slightly surprised at the number of people present, but he still had an indifferent expression. "What explanation?”

Maurice replied in a rage, “We have already agreed on the engagement, but your family called off the wedding, dumped my daughter, and your son got engaged to Ms. Lone instead! Don’t you need to give us an explanation for that?”

Candice, on the other hand, stared at Keller instead. To her disappointment, Keller lowered his head and avoided his gaze while he remained silent.

Klay scowled as he said mockingly, “Since you want an explanation, here’s one: Your daughter can’t marry a man like my son. Our family received a valuable gift from the General of the North, while your family lives in a dump. What a joke if you think that your daughter is worthy of marrying my son!”

Maurice trembled in rage. “Since you looked down on us since the very beginning, why did you agree to the engagement in the first place?”

Klay snorted. "It's because your somewhat attractive daughter acted all cute and innocent to seduce my son. Now, we've finally snapped out of our delusion and realized that your daughter is not worthy of marrying my son. My son is meant to marry Ms. Lone because that's how things are supposed to go."

Maurice was about to explode in anger, but Candice stopped him.

She bit his lip and directed her question at Keller, "Keller, I just want to ask you one question. Have you ever loved me since the day we got together?"

Keller didn't dare to meet Candice's gaze as he replied feebly, "Candice, my father's right. We shouldn't go after people who are way above our league. The person I'm marrying is Linda Lone, and you're not meant for me."

Candice's eyes reddened as she tried to stop herself from crying. "Then why did you come here tonight? Are you trying to humiliate us after you dumped me and went for Ms. Lone instead?”

Keller answered, “No. I know our actions were somewhat inappropriate, so we wanted to compensate you and your family.”

Compensate?

The Holland family stared at Klay simultaneously, as he said, “That’s right. We plan to compensate you a hundred thousand. After you receive the money, you should keep your mouth shut. Don’t mention to anyone that your daughter was ever engaged with my son. Our family received a gift from the General himself, so if anyone finds out that we were once engaged with a dumpster-diving family like you, we will be utterly embarrassed.”

The Holland family were absolutely irate when they heard that!

This isn’t compensation. He’s just using the money to buy our silence because he thinks we’ll embarrass them!

Maurice retorted viciously, "I don't want your damned money. Your family is even worse than ours!"

Klay replied nonchalantly, "It doesn't matter if you don't want the money because you need to keep your mouth shut. If you ruin our families' reputations, I will show no mercy to you."

At that moment, Nathan interjected with a cold voice, "A good reputation needs to be earned. However, the Lillard family abandoned their morals and coveted the wealthy, and for that reason everyone should shun them."

Actually, Klay had noticed Nathan and his companions since a long time ago, so he had an angered expression when he heard that. "Who are you, little brat?" he said in an unfriendly manner.

Nathan replied coldly, "You don't deserve to know my name. Now, I want the Lillard family to kneel down and apologize to my uncle's family."

Chapter 1372 Fine By Me If You Are Looking For A Beating

When Nathan said that, not only did the Lillard family's expressions changed drastically, even the Holland family seemed shocked as well.

Nathan really is a man of his word! He really asked the Lillard family to kneel down and apologize!

The Lillard family was shocked at first, but they subsequently burst into laughter.

Klay stared at Nathan and mocked, "Haha, are you asking us to kneel down and apologize? Who do you think you are? Do you know how powerful the Lillard family is in Bossania? Do you know that we have the General of the North's support?"

Klay, Keller, and his six subordinates chuckled as they stared at Nathan.

Nathan responded coldly, "Of course I know that the General of the North is supporting you."

Klay burst into laughter again. "That's weird. How would you know that?"

Nathan retorted, “Do you know who I am?”

Klay intentionally stared at Nathan for a little while longer before answering, “I don’t know which lowlife made you, and I don’t really care as well!”

Keller and the six subordinates chuckled furiously when they heard that.

However, Nathan’s expression darkened instantly.

Klay beamed brightly. “Haha. You look very angry right now. Are you thinking of beating someone up right now? Come on then. I’ll stand right in front of you and see if you dare lay a finger on me!”

After he said that, he actually taunted Nathan by pressing his left cheek towards Nathan.

The Lillard family was a middle-class family in Bossania, yet a family as poor as the Hollands still couldn’t afford to offend them.

Besides that, the Lillard family was about to tie ties with the prominent Lone family, and they even received a valuable gift from the General himself.

That was why Klay was confident that Nathan wouldn't even dare to lay a finger on him because he thought that with the power he had, he could easily destroy Nathan and the Holland family.

Unfortunately for him, he didn't know who the man in front of him was!

Nathan smirked coldly. "Don't mind me if I do!"

He then swung his palm slicing through the air at Klay.

A hint of horror appeared in Klay's eyes because he never thought that Nathan would actually dare to slap him, and he didn't manage to dodge.

He could only watch as Nathan's palm grew bigger and bigger as it flew towards him.

The force of the slap wounded Klay's face and caused him to spit out a loose tooth along with some blood.

Besides that, he was sent flying as he collapsed heavily on the ground.

The mocking laughter from the Lillard family died away in an instant.

Everything happened so quickly!

Not only was the Lillard family dumbstruck, but the Holland family also gaped in shock as well.

Klay spat out a few loose teeth laced with blood as he rubbed his swollen face. He then stared at Nathan in disbelief before exclaiming in a trembling tone, "You... How dare you slap me!"

Instead of replying, Klay pushed Keller away as he glared at Nathan. “Young man, you sure are insane and confident! Do you really want to taste the wrath of the Lillard family?”

Klay waved his hand at the muscular bodyguards.

All six of them moved without hesitation and charged at Nathan.

Klay hired these bodyguards at a very high cost. Each and every one of them was very well-trained and could move faster than most people.

But, Colin and the Elite Eight were faster than them.

Klay and Keller widened their eyes in awe as they witnessed the speed of Colin and the Elite Eight.

Both the father and son thought of the same thing. Nathan's people are so much faster!

The fight between Nathan and the Lillard's bodyguards started swiftly and ended abruptly.

All the Lillards could hear were punches and the groans of their bodyguards followed closely after.

All six of Klay's bodyguards were taken down after being punched and were now lying in their own blood.

Klay and Keller's eyes were opened so wide that it seemed like they were about to pop out. The bodyguards they had spent a fortune to hire were like amateurs in front of Nathan's men.

"D-don't be too cocky!" Keller yelled at Nathan. "We Lillards are one of the most important families in Bossania! Even the mayor wouldn't dare disrespect us! You'll never leave this city alive!"

Before Nathan could speak, Colin roared in anger. "How dare you threaten our master!"

Keller flinched. The next thing he knew, Colin was already standing in front of him.

Colin grabbed Keller by his hair and slammed his head down on the table.

The table crumbled. When Colin raised Keller's head again, his face was covered with wood chips from the table. Keller's previous arrogance was now nowhere to be seen.

As Colin let go of his grip, Keller collapsed onto the floor in front of Nathan.

Nathan then turned to Klay. "Look, your son is begging for mercy. Aren't you going to do the same?"

That was the first time Klay actually felt fear. If he'd brought more bodyguards with him, things wouldn't have ended up like this.

Nathan only replied with a scoff.

Colin immediately understood what Nathan meant and walked towards Klay. With just a single hand on Klay's shoulder, Colin pushed him to the floor. "Kneel."

Klay felt as if a mountain was crushing him as his legs gave way and he kneeled on both knees immediately with the pressure on him. His face twisted in pain as tears filled his eyes.

Nathan stared at Klay and said, “Who do you think you are? Are you even worth being my friend?”

The words embarrassed Klay so much that he wanted to kill Nathan right away.

The humiliation Klay got from Nathan had amounted to more than all he’d gotten in his life.

Even though Klay had failed miserably in front of Nathan, he wasn’t going to give up just yet. From his perspective, he still believed in the connection the Lillard had in Bossania and the dozens of fighters back at home.

Hence, it would be easy to take Nathan down anytime he wanted.

Klay finally raised his head and stared at Nathan, “You’re the first person who dares to humiliate us in Bossania! You’ll definitely regret your action!”

Dozens of cars had arrived and parked outside the Hollands' house. About a hundred scary-looking men came down from the cars.

Even though these men dressed in different styles, they all had one thing in common. They were all holding a katana in their hands.

A rich looking man in fur coat came down with a woman in his arm.

The man was none other than Joe Langer, the person who threatened Maurice on the ship.

The woman next to Joe was his girlfriend, Jade Page.

One of the scary-looking men with a scar on his face greeted Joe respectfully. "Sir, the people you're looking for are inside."

With Joe and Jade in the lead, all one hundred men walked straight into the Hollands' dingy yard.

"Hey, isn't this my future father-in-law and brother-in-law?" Joe was surprised to see both Klay and Keller kneeling on the floor.

After Keller had broken up with Candice, he immediately got engaged to Linda Langer, Joe's younger sister.

Joe was like the saving grace for the Lillards as they begged, "Mr. Langer! You're here just in time! Please help us!"

Joe quickly sized up the situation and looked at Nathan and Maurice in surprise. "This is a very small world."

Joe then turned to help Klay and Keller up. "Mr. Lillards, please, get up. I'll help you take care of them right away."

When the Hollands heard what Joe had said and looked at the people carrying katanas with them, their faces turned pale immediately.

We're doomed. They are here to seek revenge. Maurice thought.

But, before Joe could even get the Lillards up, Nathan spoke in a cold voice. "I didn't allow them to stand up."

Joe's hand, which was reaching for Klay, froze in mid-air and he turned to look at Nathan,

"Are you that eager to meet your maker? You dare to use that tone on me in Bossania?"

"Joe, let's just take them down," Jade persuaded. "They have to pay for what they did to us on the ship."

"Babe, how would you like it done?' Joe smiled.

"Chop their legs off so that they could never stand again."

The Hollands were already as pale as ghosts as they'd never seen such a thing unfold in front of them before.

Yet, Nathan didn't even flinch at the charging men.

"Protect master and the Hollands" Colin ordered.

"Yes, Sir!" all the Elite Eight replied.

Soon, weapons clashed and the fight began.

Scarface and the four men started wailing in pain as if they were some beasts.

Colin and the Elite Eight were like a couple of fierce tigers preying on a flock of sheep. In no time, their enemies started dropping down one by one.

The fight ended very quickly.

All of Joe's men were lying in blood, with either their arm or leg separated from their bodies.

Colin and the Elite Eight stood tall as if they were the guardians of Hell.

Even though the scene was gory, Nathan was not affected by it. Instead, he was staring at Joe without an ounce of emotion in his eyes.

Jade was a woman, and no matter how vicious she was, she was terrified upon seeing the scene before her.

After hearing what Nathan had said and got a cold stare from him, she collapsed to the floor.

Only Joe remained standing. “How dare you touch us! You’re dead when my dad learns of this! Even your family will go down with you! Beg for my forgiveness now, or you’ll never see the sky ever again!”

"Hah! Are you afraid now?" Joe Langer laughed. "It's all too late now! You will all be dead when my dad arrives!"

"Your dad?" Nathan raised an eyebrow.
"You're right. Your father should apologize for not teaching his son well."

Nathan then turned to Colin and ordered,
"Notify the head of the Langer family to bring all of his family members over here to offer their apologies."

Did Nathan just say he wanted the head of the Langer family to come and apologize to him?

Joe wasn't the only one who was shocked by what he heard. Even the Hollands were taken aback.

It was probably their first time meeting someone as arrogant as Nathan, someone who dared to mess with almost anyone.

Joe was the first to react and scoffed, "Seriously, this is my first time meeting someone who could bluff as much as you. Who do you think you are? The master of our nation? The General of the border? Do you even know who my father is? He's someone who can make the Mayor talk to him politely. And you want my dad to kneel and apologize to you? Are you serious?"

Maurice quickly whispered to Nathan out of worry. "Nathan, Langer is one of the biggest families in Bossania. We're in deep shit now... What should we do now? We have to run as far away from here as possible. We have to make sure all of us

Nathan’s words managed to convinced the Hollands somehow. Maurice wanted to say more but he stopped himself in the end.

Joe and the others waited for his father to arrive while they kneeled on the floor with a smug on their faces.

In just ten minutes, another batch of vehicles arrived.

When Nathan realized that Trent was sincere with his apology, he decided to let him off. He coldly said, "I'll accept the Langers' apology on behalf of the Holland family. After you take your son home, you'll have to teach him a lesson. If he dares to make the same mistake again, he won't be easily forgiven the next time."

Upon hearing Nathan's words, Trent was overwhelmed with immense relief. "Yes, of course. Thank you, Mr. Cross!"

When Klay and his son saw Trent acting subserviently in front of Nathan, they were dumbfounded.

Right then, Nathan's gaze landed on the Lillard father and son.

Chapter 1378 Pretending To Be The General Is A Felony

Nathan laughed, “Why do I have to pretend to be myself?”

Klay grinned. “Since you’re insisting that you’re the General, let me call Colonel Henderson, the commander-in-chief of the Bossania army. Let him be the one to expose you of your lies and arrest you.”

Patrick Henderson was the commander-in-chief of the Bossania army. He was a colonel, and his army was under the jurisdiction of the North Army.

Previously, Colin was the one who called Patrick, asking him to send the plaque to the Lillard family.

That was how Klay had the contact number of the colonel.

Trent knew who Nathan was, and that was why he was swift to draw the line with the Lillard family earlier.

However, he was still a friend of Keller.

When he saw that Klay was actively seeking his own demise, he hurriedly persuaded, “Klay, stop this now. The man in front of you is really the General of the North and the God of War. Hurry up and beg for his forgiveness now.”

Klay was bewildered. “Trent, what’s wrong with you? Why do you believe in everything he says?”

There was a reason why Klay did not believe that Nathan was the General.

The General had gifted the Lillard family a plaque, and that meant that the Lillard family in the good book of the General.

If Nathan were the General, he would not have pushed his family to the corner like now. It was obvious that this would have been a contradiction to his prior actions.

Therefore, Klay did not believe that Nathan was the General. He took out his phone, adamant on calling the Colonel to come and expose Nathan’s lies and arrest him.

However, before he could make the call, the sounds of marching footsteps came from the outside.

The next they saw was a burly, middle-aged, ferocious-looking man in colonel uniform entering with a troop of armed soldiers.

This man was the commander-in-chief of the Bossania army, Patrick Henderson.

When Klay saw Patrick, he was overjoyed.

Before he could finish his sentence, Patrick had shoved him aside. Without sparing a glance to the father and son, he led his soldiers to Nathan.

All of them stood straight and saluted at Nathan with a roar, “General!”

General!

Boom!

Chapter 1379 The One I Truly Love Is You

Meanwhile, Nathan was staring at Klay and his son as he muttered, “Weren’t you looking for Colonel Henderson?”

Soon, Patrick realizing something was amiss so he turned to glare at Klay and Keller.

When both found out that Nathan was the General, they were shocked to the core.

Now, when Nathan’s indifferent gaze and Patrick’s glare landed on them; their knees went weak, thus, they fell to the ground and knelt before Nathan.

With a pale face and stuttering voice, Klay said, “G-General, we were blind fools for not recognizing you. Please forgive us.”

Keller was more terrified than his father was. He was lying sprawled on the ground as he trembled. The front of his pants was soaked, and there was a stench of urine in the air. Keller Lillard had peed himself from fright.

Nathan answered, “It’s true that you were blind fools. It's one thing to not recognize me, but it's another thing to break off the engagement with my friend Candice. She's an excellent woman, and you're both blind idiots."

Friend?

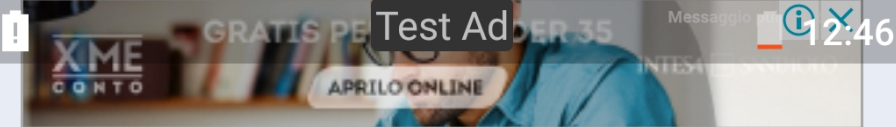

Upon hearing his words, both Klay and Keller turned to look at Candice, who was standing in the crowd, in shock.

The person they had ridiculed as a penniless woman from a garbage dump and broke off the engagement without her consent was a friend of the General!

Shock and regret overwhelmed both Klay and Keller.

If they had found out that Candice was an associate of the General, they would have never broken off the engagement; they would have taken her into the family with a grand wedding.

Nathan asked, "Do you know why I gave the plaque to the Lillard family?"

Klay really did not know why. He recalled that his eldest son was in the North Army, and he heard that he was being valued for his abilities.

He could not help but ask, "Isn't it because my son, Joseph Lillard, is in the North Army. Isn't he a soldier you value?"

Joseph Lillard?

Nathan furrowed his brows before turning to Colin and the Elite Eight. "Do you remember this person?"

Although Colin was a man with a burly body and rough features; however, he was quite a sensitive man and he had a good memory too. Otherwise, he would not have made it to become the Captain of National Guards.

Colin gave the name so thought before answering, "Yes. There was a captain by this name, but he's a spy, and he's been arrested. The results of his punishment have yet to be announced. He's only allowed to call home to report on his wellbeing now. He's not any valued soldier."

Not only was Klay's eldest son not a valued soldier in the army, but he was also a criminal who was serving his sentence now.

As Joseph used to be a good soldier in the military, the North Army had yet to inform the Lillard family.

Furthermore, every time Joseph called home, he would lie to them, telling them that he was doing well in the military.

Hence, that was why Klay assumed that it was because the General valued his eldest son when the Lillard family received the plaque from the General.

Now, it seemed like that was not the case.

Nathan stared at the dumbstruck father and son and uttered, "I gave you the plaque because of my friend, Candice."

Shock struck the two again as they turned to look at Candice with a complicated expression.

Candice, too, was staring back at them with a similar expression.

Nathan continued, "I only did this because you were going to be married to my friend. But, I have never expected you to cling to the rich and the powerful while you despise the poor. I never thought that you would break off the engagement without her consent before the wedding. This is a humiliation for her and her family. This is unacceptable!"

When Klay and Keller finally understood why the General had given them the plaque, they were remorseful and resentful.

They had a chance to build a relationship with the General, but they were the ones who gave the opportunity away and even crossed the General himself.

Klay lowered his head slightly as he shamelessly said, "General, allow me to be honest with you, the daughter-in-law our family wants is still Ms. Holland. We were wrong, and we regret what we did. We want her to marry into our family. Please allow us to do that”

Keller quickly crawled his way to Candice and pleased her. “That’s right, Candice. I know I was in the wrong. The one I truly love is you. Will you please marry me now?”

Everyone turned their attention to Candice.

Maurice and Hera stared at the father and son, who once mocked Candice horribly as they begged for their daughter to marry into the Lillard family.

They could not help but feel hearty merriment to that.

They thought, Didn't the Lillards think they were fantastic? Didn't they look down on us and said that Candice was unworthy of him?

Why are you pleading for our daughter to marry into your family now?

While Maurice and Hera felt gleeful about the situation, they were also feeling grateful to Nathan.

Not only were they grateful for him, but they were also respectful and proud to be in association with him.

They were respectful of him because Nathan was a humble man. Every time he came to their house, he came as their son's friend.

Never once had he boasted about his identity. He was always friendly and humble.

They were proud because they felt prideful for their son to have a friend like Nathan.

Birds of the same feather flock together. That also implied that their son was an excellent man too to be a friend with someone as successful as Nathan.

Meanwhile, Candice just looked at Keller, who was kneeling servilely, and pleaded with her.

Suddenly, she felt that the man in front of her was a stranger.

In the past, Keller had been a man who was knowledgeable, humorous, considerate and gentle to her.

However, she didn't seem to know this man at all. The same man who had broken off their engagement but now begging on his knees.

In the end, she said in a cold voice, "I'm sorry. From the moment you broke off our engagement and went back on our promise, it was the end of us."

A horrified expression crossed Keller's face, and he moved to grab Candice's legs to beg her again.

However, Candice continued, "Don't cry on your knees in front of me. You'll only make me more upset. The more you act like this, the more I regret ever loving you."

Upon hearing her words, despair crashed Keller's like a tidal wave.

Nathan, who was standing on the side, nodded in approval of Candice's choice.

He then gave Klay and Keller a cold stare and said, "You may have apologized, but if apologies were useful for every mistake one made, there would be no use for the law. Everyone would just do as they please.”

In a trembling voice, Klay murmured, “General, the Lillard family will accept any kind of punishment, but please, let the bloodline in our family continue.”

Nathan was the General, and Bossania was under the jurisdiction of the North, which meant it was under the ruling of Nathan.

Klay was fearful that Nathan would wipe out the entire Lillard family in a fit of anger.

Nathan replied in a frigid voice, “The Lillard family has the wealth but lack of virtue. You’ll have to donate half of your money for charity, and the Lillard family has to go into hiding for three years. And you’re not allowed to leave the house, and you’ll have to reflect on your mistakes during this time. Do you have any problems with these conditions?”

We have to donate half of all our money for charity?

And then go into hiding for three years?

It was as if Klay was whipped by Nathan's words. He thought, The Lillard family will have a tough time recovering from this.

However, he was glad that the Lillard family was spared from annihilation.

With that, both the father and son quickly thanked him, "No. We'll get on this immediately."

"Good. Patrick will supervise you. If you don't do as I say, more severe punishment will be awaiting you."

Klay quickly answered, "Yes, yes. I understand."

Nathan then continued, "You may scram now."

Like prisoners of wars who found a chance to escape, Trent and Klay fled the scene in no time.
