

Chapter 2251

Jupiter thought it would be easy for him to defeat Harvey if he put his best foot forward.

After all, he was the eldest disciple of Longmen's Law Enforcement. He had the confidence and strength to do so.

Slap! Slap!

However, Harvey took a step forward and slapped Jupiter around once again.

“So what if I hit you?”

Jupiter was boiling with anger, fuming.

“You...!” he screamed, close to exploding with anger.

“What? You're not satisfied? You think I snuck up on you?”

Harvey hooked his finger mockingly, smiling faintly at Jupiter.

“Come! I’ll give you a chance. This time, you better show me all your strength!”

Jupiter’s eyes twitched frantically after hearing Harvey’s words.

The next moment, he sprang forth, revealing his full strength.

“I’ll have you know that I’m no easy target for you to bully, Harvey York!”

He rushed forward, and the waddy in his hand emitted an eerie green glow.

Right then, a strange green shadow zoomed right at Harvey, presenting a terrifying sight.

“Branch Leader! Look out!” Rachel shouted out of instinct.

Bang!

Before the waddy could land a hit on Harvey, he aimed a hard kick right on Jupiter's stomach.

Jupiter was on par with a God of War. Since he was going all out, logically speaking, he should have frightening speed and power.

But when Harvey kicked him, he was immediately sent flying like a dead dog.

He couldn't block the hit, even if he wanted to.

He couldn't dodge it even if he tried, either.

The power of Harvey's kick was off the charts!

Rather than a kick, Jupiter felt like he got rammed by an armored vehicle!

There was no way he could've guarded against such terrifying strength like this. He was left with no choice but to be sent flying.

Pffffft!

When Jupiter landed, a spray of red burst out of his mouth.

He wanted to stand, but he could only kneel on the ground helplessly, his face a wretched expression.

Mavis and the others gasped at this, their faces grim with shock and horror.

Jupiter was a true God of War, but even so, he wasn't able to block a single hit against Harvey...

What kind of strength did Harvey have?!

Harvey crossed his arms and walked forward nonchalantly. He stopped next to Jupiter and then kicked Jupiter again.

“You disappoint me,” Harvey said casually.

“Don't you feel ashamed to call yourself a God of War?”

“If all Gods of War are like you, then I’d rather them slam their heads against a wall and die!”

“Listen to me. When you go outside next time, stop calling yourself that. You’ll get yourself killed, you scumbag!”

Harvey’s words were truly demoralizing, with each word injecting fear and rage into Jupiter.

He wanted to refute them badly, but he quickly realized that doing so was meaningless in the face of reality.

In a fit of rage, Jupiter gritted his teeth.

“Stop spouting nonsense, kid!” Jupiter barked coldly.

“Fine, my skills are inferior! I admit defeat!”

“If you have the guts, kill me!”

“But if you kill a disciple of Longmen’s Law Enforcement, it’ll be considered treason against Longmen! I’d love to see who’s going to protect you when that happens!”

“Together with all the other charges, you’ll be ripped to shreds by the Law Enforcement!”

“If I get in trouble, you’ll be screwed!”

“How naive.”

Harvey picked up the waddy and split it into four halves with ease. With a swing of his arm, he then pierced all four of Jupiter’s limbs in.

Just like that, blood was flying everywhere, painting the scenery a gruesome color.

Jupiter wailed in pain, horrified, before slipping to the ground. He was paralyzed, unable to move at all.

Harvey calmly took out some tissue to wipe his dirtied fingers.

“Your limbs are all crippled. From today onward, you won’t even be able to stand, let alone train.”

“This is the cost of your crimes. The price you pay for doing dirty work for someone else.”

Chapter 2252

“Kill me! Kill me if you dare!”

Jupiter let out a wretched scream after finding out that he was crippled.

For people like him, this was a fate worse than death.

“Don’t worry. I won’t kill you,” Harvey replied calmly, unconcerned.

“Today’s my big day, after all. If I kill people in my own territory, it’ll be a bad look on me.”

“But while you may have escaped death, you still can’t run away from your sins.”

Harvey clapped his hands and turned around and gave a command to his subordinates.

“Cripple them all.”

Aiden stepped out obediently, his lips a horrific and sinister grin as he made his way towards the rest of the Law Enforcement disciples.

He was best at kicking people while they were down. It was what he was born to do.

“No! Please!”

Mavis was scared witless, all her courage from before nowhere to be seen..

“H-Harvey! Branch Leader York, I’m just here to send a message from my teacher!”

“My teacher is the master of Longmen’s Law Enforcement! Don’t you want to know what his orders are?!”

Harvey turned around.

“Stop stalling if you have something to say,”

Harvey said straightforwardly.

Mavis fumbled around and took out a letter. She hurriedly tore it open, and then read it out loud.

“My teacher ordered you to give up the position of Mordu’s Longmen branch leader. He cannot accept that an outsider like you is inheriting the title, and says that you have no right to do so!”

“He will also send someone to take over Mordu’s Longmen branch in a few days’ time.”

“If you don’t do as he says, you’ll be going up against the whole of Longmen, along with its millions of disciples!”

Slap!

“Are you threatening the Branch Leader?!”

Just as Mavis finished reading out the letter, Aiden marched towards her and snatched the letter from her. He tore it to shreds before slapping Mavis hard on the face.

His swift actions pleased Harvey, who turned to look at him with a gaze of admiration.

“Cripple her as well. I have other things to do,” Harvey ordered nonchalantly.

Aiden cackled wickedly before pouncing on Mavis, eager for violence.

At night, in the backyard of Mordu's Longmen number one Budokan...

A group of higher ups were seated together, frowning anxiously.

“Branch Leader, this situation seems a lot more complicated than we initially assumed.”

“I've already asked my old contacts about this. The Law Enforcement's operation during your banquet was approved by Longmen's Four Elders.”

“Simply put, they are the supporting powers behind the Law Enforcement.”

Justin took a sip of his black tea. Though he tried to appear calm and steady, the anxiety on his face was apparent.

“Longmen’s Four Elders? Who are they?”

Harvey asked casually, leaning on the couch.

“Longmen’s Four Elders aren’t really that powerful, but they are widely respected people within Longmen. Every single one of them has made huge contributions toward Longmen.”

“The four of them then established an Elder Group called the Longmen Overseers. Even the master of Longmen would have to make compromises for them.”

“Out of thirty-six branch leaders within Longmen, half of them were recommended by the Elder Group themselves. This includes the Head of the Law Enforcement.”

Justin hesitated briefly before he continued to speak.

“In fact, Oliver Bauer was one of the people that was recommended by them.”

To that, Harvey smiled. He was as calm as ever, not a hair out of place.

“I see. So, they’re trying to stand up for Oliver and do Hector a favor at the same time.”

“Two birds with one stone! Pretty impressive trick, I’d say.”

Harvey disliked Hector immensely, but he had to admit that Hector truly lived up to the title of Wolsing’s prince, especially after realizing that Hector had a huge part in this entire incident.

Longmen’s Law Enforcement wouldn’t have taken action simply for Oliver’s sake.

But since Hector was pulling the strings all along, things were different.

Thinking this, Harvey regretted letting go of Hector so easily before.

Chapter 2253

“Does anyone have any suggestions on what to do about today’s incident? I’m all ears,” Harvey said with a warm smile after a moment of pondering.

Aiden and Rachel exchanged glances, but said nothing.

They were the younger generation of Longmen, after all. This was their first time finding out about the Longmen Overseers. Naturally, they couldn’t come out with anything worthwhile.

Justin hesitated for a while before saying quietly, “There are two things that can be done, Branch Leader.”

“Number one, you’ll go to Flutwell and beg for forgiveness from the Elder Group. Judging from their pride, they’ll let you off the hook as long as you give in.”

Harvey nodded without interrupting Justin, and then signaled him to continue.

“Number two, you’ll get the master of Longmen himself to back you up. After all, he’s basically the rival of the Four Longmen Elders. They don’t show it on the surface, but they’ve been constantly backstabbing each other without remorse all this time.”

“If you have the master of Longmen’s support, the Four Longmen Elders won’t be able to do anything to you for the time being.”

“Wait, Longmen’s split into two factions?”

Harvey asked, his curiosity piqued.

“The master of Longmen is opposed to the Four Longmen Elders?”

“With the Four Longmen Elders’ lacking capability, do they even have the right to fight for authority against the master of Longmen?”

Justin chuckled bitterly at Harvey's questions.

“There's something you don't know, Branch Leader. The Four Longmen Elders may not be skilled at fighting, but their power, influence, and background are pretty much on par with the master of Longmen himself.”

“In the past, they made huge achievements and rescued many powerful figures within Country H.”

“Since they have acquired the support of such powerful people, they could go against the master of Longmen.”

“I heard that they intend to make the Head of Law Enforcement the next master of Longmen.”

“After all, no one has been chosen as Longmen's successor yet.”

“That’s why, to a certain extent, the master of Longmen and the Four Longmen Elders are fighting for the organization’s inheritance.”

“I see.”

Harvey could roughly understand the situation at hand.

Hector fanning the flames aside, the Four Longmen Elders would be furious about Samuel giving Harvey authority to take control of Mordu’s Longmen branch.

Jupiter was ordered here to harass Harvey as a favor for Hector, but the Elders never had the intention of disrespecting Samuel in the first place.

A shame that they didn’t take account for Harvey’s strength, causing Jupiter and other disciples to be crippled for daring to provoke a powerful opponent.

From this perspective, Harvey was already knee deep against the Law Enforcement and the Four Longmen Elders.

“No matter what your decision will be, I’ll arrange everything for you if you’re going to Flutwell,” Justin said. His words were a subtle warning to Harvey.

To Justin, Harvey had no right to fight the Four Longmen Elders.

It would be unwise for a man who was freshly appointed as Branch Leader to provoke them.

But Harvey simply looked at Justin quietly, his interest piqued even further.

“Thank you for your suggestions, Vice Branch Leader. That said, I’m not interested in either of them,” he replied calmly.

“Send a message for me. Since I’m taking office, Mordu's Longmen branch will not be controlled by anyone else.”

“I don't care if it's the Elder Group or the Law Enforcement Hall. If they come to Mordu, they will all submit to me.”

“Whoever dares to cause trouble in my territory, I'll cripple all of them!”

Chapter 2254

The following day, Harvey's word spread throughout Longmen.

His announcement caused a huge uproar.

Other than those who originally belonged to Mordu's Longmen branch, the other thirty-five branches thought that Harvey had gone insane.

To talk big despite being a newly appointed branch leader...

He was clearly going against the Four Elders and Longmen's Law Enforcement!

This was not a matter of courage. Harvey had a death wish!

News from Flutwell claimed that one of the Four Longmen Elders got so angry, he smashed an invaluable purple clay pot into pieces in a fit of rage .

The Law Enforcement, meanwhile, was preparing their troops to arrest the branch leader, who was going against his superiors.

While the world was stirring up a fuss, Harvey returned to the number one villa.

As he walked in, he was greeted with the sight of Mandy and Xynthia anxiously pacing the living room.

Simon was holding a letter, and his face was a bloodless pallor. His thoughts were completely unreadable.

“What happened? What’s going on?” Harvey asked swiftly. He didn’t even have the time to take a single sip of water.

“Something terrible happened to Mother, Harvey! Someone told us to give you this letter. If you don’t do as the letter says, they’ll kill her!” Mandy said, panicked. She snatched the letter from Simon and promptly handed it to Harvey.

Inside was a picture of Lilian bound tightly to a chair.

Behind her, a bustling place with bright lights could be seen.

Harvey squinted, studying some of the iconic buildings present in the picture.

“Las Vegas?!”

“That’s right!” Mandy exclaimed, and pointed at the words in the letter.

“They said that they’ll kill Mother if you don’t show up to Las Vegas alone in three days!”

“What should we do, Harvey?”

Mandy was now the head of the ninth branch within the Jean family, but even so, her newly-attained prestige was still not enough to keep her calm under such circumstances.

After all, this was her own mother they were talking about!

Harvey clenched the letter tightly and studied the handwriting, trying to decipher whom penmanship belonged to.

“I know who did this,” he said after a while, his voice calm.

“Don’t worry, everyone. I’ll go there and get Mom back.”

It was true that after Lilian arrived at Mordu, she kept trying to kick Harvey out of the family...

But the fact of the matter was, she was still Mandy’s mother.

Since Harvey was the one who caused this tragedy, albeit indirectly he couldn’t just stand by and watch either.

Mandy regained her composure slightly after hearing Harvey's words. She then added quietly, "What if we make use of the Jean family's powers as well, Harvey? If we do that, it'll be easy to find Mother."

"I can come with you to Las Vegas, too."

"I can't just watch my own mother suffer!"

Harvey wanted to convince her otherwise, but seeing how anxious Mandy was, he couldn't help but sigh and relent.

"Fine. You can come with me."

"But I have one request. Whatever happens next, you have to listen to me."

As he spoke, he took out his phone and sent a few messages to several people.

Early in the next morning, a private plane landed steadily at Las Vegas International Airport. The weather was bright and sunny.

This was a private plane owned by the Jean family, one of the assets that Mandy was able to mobilize.

When the plane landed, a Mercedes Benz G showed up outside the airport without a sound.

Someone was looking at Harvey from the backseat through a black-tinted window.

<https://t.me/HarveyYorkEnglish>

Chapter 2255

Behind the pitch-black window was a man
Harvey was quite familiar with.

If Harvey noticed this man, he would've recognized the man in an instant.

The unknown man spied on Harvey through a pair of military-use binoculars. A faint smile made its way to his lips.

“The intel from Wolsing was right after all.”

“Proceed as planned.”

“He dared to go against a young master of Wolsing...”

“Since everyone wants him dead, I'd like to see if he can still survive...”

The man then made a gesture.

The car slowly started up, before slipping quietly into the bustling streets of Las Vegas without a trace.

Half an hour later, Harvey drove a Toyota Alphard out of the airport.

There were many things that he needed to deal with in Mordu, whether it be Longmen, Sky Corporation, or the Shindan Way...

But since Lilian was taken hostage, he had to deal with this problem first.

He had no choice but to come anyway, since Mandy was rushing to Las Vegas as soon as she could.

Fortunately, the Jean family had company branches and manpower scattered all across Las Vegas. With just a phone call, his and Mandy's transportation and place to stay were arranged in an instant.

But for safety reasons, Harvey decided that he didn't want anyone from the Jean family as protection in Las Vegas.

“Say, why would they kidnap Mother? And why are they demanding you to come here within three days?”

Mandy rubbed on her forehead, confused. She couldn't wrap her head around the situation.

She knew that Harvey was a prince, and she had also experienced the Sky Corporation's company listing incident first-hand. Thus, she understood that it was expected for people to provoke him.

This was why she couldn't fathom why they would go for Lilian instead.

“There are three reasons,” Harvey replied calmly, as he controlled the steering wheel.

“First, it’s too difficult for them to face me head on in Mordu. I have too many people protecting me, and I know a lot of Mordu’s government officials. No matter how they try to attack me, they have a good chance of being affected by these problems.”

“Second, while Las Vegas also belongs to Country H, it is way more problematic than Hong Kong because of historical reasons. For that reason, people of all sorts gather here.”

“If they want to dispatch their men or hide their true identity, this is the best place for them to do it.”

“Besides, Hong Kong and Las Vegas are facing each other across the sea. It’ll take about half an hour to travel between these two places. They’ll be able to come and go quickly should they decide to do business here.”

“Third, Lilian was taken as hostage because she’s the easiest one to catch.”

“You have the Jean family’s guards with you, while Xynthia and I are under protection as well.”

“Mother-in-law, on the other hand, keeps running around without any decent protection. Wouldn’t it be easy to catch her since that’s the case?”

“Simply put, though it looks like a simple plan to catch Mom, I’m pretty sure they’ve been planning this for a long time.”

There was something else that Harvey did not say to Mandy.

While Harvey was busy challenging the Four Longmen Elders and the Law Enforcement, the enemy forced him out of Mordu by suddenly kidnapping Lilian.

This was a very well thought out plan...

If Harvey couldn't deal with Las Vegas' matters as soon as possible...

Mordu's Longmen branch would fall into his enemy's hands after Harvey finished his business. The Four Elders and Longmen's Law Enforcement would take control of it.

If that happened, all of his prior efforts would be completely wasted.

He was facing an interesting opponent this time ...

With the opponent's extraordinary status and background in both Hong Kong and Las Vegas, his identity was almost as clear as day...

Chapter 2256

Mandy's face changed as she listened to Harvey's explanation. She was no longer the sweet and innocent girl from before, but the head of the ninth branch of the Jean family.

After Harvey's explanation, she understood that she had acted too rashly about Lilian's kidnapping.

Had she allowed Harvey to plan everything out before coming, they would've had a better chance of rescuing Lilian.

Thinking of this, she sighed.

"I was being too rash, Harvey. I'm so sorry..."

Harvey patted Mandy's head and smiled warmly at her.

"You're my wife. There's no need to say something like that.”

“Besides, Lilian’s still my mother-in-law, no matter how badly she treats me.”

“She’s trying her hardest to get me out of the family, but maybe she’ll let me stay after we save her!”

Mandy chuckled bitterly after hearing Harvey’s playful words. She knew her mother all too well.

Even if Harvey did manage to save Lilian, Lilian would probably be ungrateful for it.

In fact, she might even blame Harvey for what happened to her.

Mandy shook her head, telling herself to stop overthinking it. They had yet to save Lilian, so these were just useless thoughts.

“Harvey, what do we do next?” she asked with a frown.

Harvey snapped his fingers, glancing at the rear view mirror.

“Right when we got out of the plane, someone’s already been spying on us.”

“I thought they’d only start moving when we reach our destination. I didn’t think they’d be this impatient.”

Harvey turned the wheel furiously and drove into a narrow path.

Two Mercedes Benz Gs trailed behind. When they realized Harvey’s intentions, they honked loudly and rushed to catch up. One car was black and the other white, like Yin and Yang. They quickly closed in with the intent to kill.

Mandy followed Harvey’s gaze and looked at the rear view mirror as well. Her expression grew ugly.

“Who are these people?”

“It doesn’t matter. Since they’re here, it means we have work to do,” Harvey said calmly.

“Sit tight!”

So saying, he swiftly turned the wheel and pressed hard on the brakes.

Creeeeeak!

The car turned a hundred and eighty degrees in place, pulling off a high-level drift.

Harvey stepped on the gas with all his might.

The cars trailing behind him failed to react, and he took advantage of it by immediately slipping right through the middle.

The two Mercedes Benz Gs stopped in an instant. One car rolled down its windows, and a handsome man with sunglasses emerged. He looked absolutely thunderous.

“You bastard! Screw you!”

“I’ll kill you!”

Then, they spun around and chased after Harvey’s Toyota Alphard a second time.

They had a simple but obvious plan: stop Harvey in his tracks without anybody to see it.

They were so close to achieving their goal, but they never expected Harvey to slip right past them with his marvelous drifting.

In a flash, Harvey drove to an avenue.

The car casually overtook everyone else, and roared right toward Las Vegas’ urban district.

They began to speed up, completely ignoring the unfortunate cabs they rammed along the way, charging furiously at Harvey with a care in the world.

Seeing that the two cars were quickly catching up to him, Harvey calmly turned the wheel.
