

Chapter 88 This Is All Karma

As she made her way home that afternoon, Neve wore a triumphant smile on her face. Zayn had gotten his hands on Jade and Neve herself had pleased Zayn significantly. It was killing two birds with one stone.

"Stupid Jade. Let's see how you go on acting all high and mighty now when you're already tainted goods..."

Gloating and feeling victorious about how things had turned out, Neve's jaw dropped when she arrived at the porch. As she stared at the door frame and doors that had been blasted off currently laying on the ground, she wondered what had happened. Was it...an earthquake?

She hurriedly called Zayn to ask about it but no one answered, so she immediately drove over. She needed to ask Zayn what he did that was so devastating.

When she found him, he threw a punch at her even before she could ask anything. What followed were more kicks and punches as Zayn continuously beat Neve for over ten minutes.

During the process of it, Zayn gritted his teeth and did not offer a word. He did not stop until he saw that Neve could not even muster up the strength to protect her head.

As Neve laid on the floor—so much blood covered her face that even her wronged expression was not visible—she forced herself to ask with much difficulty, "Zayn, I helped you. Why did you hit me?"

"I was upset and needed to vent by beating someone up. Serves you right for coming at this time!"

Zayn was truly upset. If it were not for Chessie's last message, he would have killed Zayn. Chessie posed such a huge threat that he dared not do as such. And this frustrated him to no end.

Neve was equally frustrated. She had "generously" helped Zayn get his hands on Jade only to receive a violent beating in exchange. What was worse was that she did not dare show any disgruntlement because of the same reason—she was hoping she would marry the rich heir to maintain her opulent lifestyle.

At the same time, Jade sat on the couch hugging her knees. Her shiny eyes looked rather dull until Javier sat down next to her. Some life seemed to come back to her as she turned to look at Javier.

"I shouldn't have been born into this world, right? Why is everyone bullying me?"

Jade could not be blamed for her despair and sadness. It was true that she was quite unfortunate. Her extended family was more brutal than her enemy while her only direct family member was meek and cowardly.

Even at this point, Catherine would occasionally ask, "Should we go back and apologize to your grandfather?"

It was as if they deserved all this bullying. It was as if the two of them had not done a good enough job and that's why people were bullying them.